

The Adopting Cultural Competent Best Practices Project

Promoting Culturally Responsive Services for Diverse Populations in Minnesota - 2011

Disparities in CD treatment delivery and access are often stark and point out inequities across gender and cultural/ethnic communities. It is the intent of the Department of Human Services (DHS) to help in reducing these disparities, particularly as it relates in the provision of chemical health services to diverse populations.

Through a combination of theory and practice, The Adopting Cultural Competent Best Practices Project was designed to help provide professionals working in the field of CD treatment tools to help combat some of these disparities.
